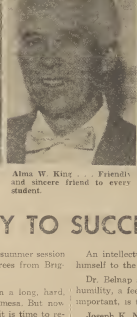
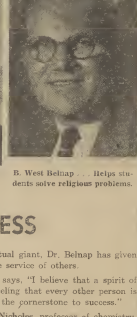
Tribute Paid BYU Professors

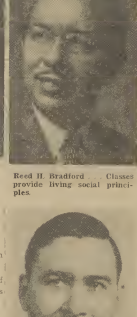
Edwin J. Butterworth . . . Gained good public relations for BYU.



Alma W. King . . . Friendly and sincere friend to every student.



B. West Belnap . . . Helps students solve religious problems.



Reed H. Bradford . . . Classes provide living social principles.

Joseph K. Nicholes . . . 3[illegible] years of successful accomplishments.

KEY TO SUCCESS

With the conclusion of 1957 summer session 2800 students will receive degrees from Brigham Young University.

For many of us it has been a long, hard four-year grind to climb the mesa. But now that we have reached plateau it is time to reflect back down the trail and pay tribute to some outstanding professors who have guided us along the college path.

Edwin J. Butterworth, assistant professor of journalism and head of BYU's News Bureau, is cited for the remarkable accomplishments he has made in acquiring good public relations for BYU.

By constantly providing high quality news releases to national and local press and radio, Professor Butterworth has handled many difficult BYU problems in an honest and professional manner.

In addition to performing his duties as head of the news bureau, Professor Butterworth maintains a one-half normal teaching load. He has been an outstanding professor by providing students with a practical as well as theoretical knowledge of journalism.

"I think hard work toward goals and ideals is the key to success," Professor Butterworth said.

Alma W. King, assistant professor of religion and member of the dean of students staff, has helped many discouraged and heartbroken students by his work in personnel guidance.

Professor King has been at BYU only one year, but in that time he has established himself as a person who is really interested in the students and their welfare.

For students who have been ready to leave BYU, Professor King's guidance has helped many find themselves again.

"The road of success encompasses the philosophy, 'think little of self but much of the welfare of others,'" quotes Professor King.

B. West Belnap, professor of church organization and director of undergraduate studies in religion, plays a vital administrative role in the BYU Religion Department. Religious problems confront most students attending BYU and it has been the successful aim of Dr. Belnap to help students solve their problems by research and prayer.

An intellectual giant, Dr. Belnap has given himself to the service of others.

Dr. Belnap says, "I believe that a spirit of humility, a feeling that every other person is important, is the cornerstone to success."

Joseph K. Nicholes, professor of chemistry, has just completed an outstanding record of 33 years teaching service to BYU students.

By putting spice into his subject Professor Nicholes teaches chemistry in a manner which brings interest and accomplishments from students.

Those students who have missed taking a class from Professor Nicholes have missed a wealth of experience.

Professor Nicholes believes that success is "a good life of service to others no matter what field of endeavor is used."

Reed H. Bradford, professor of sociology and chairman of BYU Sociology Department, teaches classes with the purpose of providing living social principles to his students.

Dr. Bradford demonstrates to students the possible solutions to most social problems confronting the individual in American society.

Students who need help in solving their social problems can count on the advice of Dr. Bradford as being nearly perfect. He understands people; he understands society; he molds the two into one.

"To love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind," is the foundation to all success and happiness," states Dr. Bradford.

Kent H. McKnight, assistant professor of botany, brings into classrooms the wonder and beauty of the great outdoors. In his botany classes, Professor McKnight presents life. He gives students understanding and insight into the complexities of nature and the universe.

His infallible memory amazes every person he contacts. Great discoveries in the science of botany can be expected from the mind of Professor McKnight.

Professor McKnight believes "success is the opportunity to contribute some worthwhile thing to society."

By no means are these all of the outstanding professors at BYU. But they are a good cross section of the high caliber educators to be found on Brigham Young University campus.

Dr. Bradford pointed out that the committee serves its main purpose in educating students with the point of view that rules are made to help them. In contrast to BYU students represent not only themselves but their families, the university, and in 97 per cent of the cases, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

According to Dr. Bradford, before any recommendation before the Faculty Committee on Honor do not think of themselves as representatives of others, until such time as the situation is brought to their attention.

Committee Recommends

As far as punitive measures are concerned, the committee may make one of four recommendations: 1. Official reprimand 2. Probation without privileges of intercollegiate activity 3. Suspension for a period of time 4. Expulsion from the university.

Even after being expelled, subsequent behavior indicating sincere repentance might enable a student to be readmitted to the university. Dr. Bradford added

The present committee comprises four faculty members and two student members. Student names have not yet been approved, but faculty members include Dr. Karl E. As summer school comes to a glorious end it seems to be entirely appropriate to hand out some sincere praises. Let me do it this way: Orchids to all those in the educational field who have honored us with their presence on the campus this summer, and who have further honored their profession by attempting to better themselves and their work.

Carnations to the studenthody officers. Their planning and guidance have been the very best for some good student activities. Roses (great big red ones) to a long suffering, hard working faculty. They cheerfully (on the surface, at least) forego the pleasures of vacation time and keep their brains to the grindstone. Dandelions to the editor for no reason other than dandelions are his favorite flowers.

Yanks, Braves Win

As each day goes by the Yankees and the Braves are nudging their heads in their respective leagues.

Though it has been and can still be a very tight race in the National League, the Braves have moved out in front gaining by game by a bigger margin than has been seen all season.

Most of the teams in the National League are on a pretty even basis with probably accounts for the tight squeeze to the pennant.

Over in the American League, the Yankees though they have had some close calls have held the lead for most of the season. For a time it looked as though they were going to stip behind Chicago but they came back with their traditional back-breaking victories.

It looks as though Milwaukee and New York are well on their way to the World Series this fall, but almost anything can happen between now and then, to upset their plans drastically.

Three Films to be Released; Students Star in Productions

by John Kinnear
Summer Universe Writer

Since 1933 the Brigham Young University Motion Picture Department, directed by Wetzel O Whitaker, has produced 16 films—with three more to be released soon.

Australian Experiences

According to "Judge" Whitaker, one of the movies to be released this fall is "Decision." The story is based on the experiences of a "Mormon" GI training with an Australian outfit in World War II

The LDS boy has to make his "Decision" in the face of customs and folkways in a foreign country

"Decision" is being produced for the LDS Church Personal Standards Committee under Elder Mark E Petersen, member of the Council of Twelve Apostles.

Movie Scheduled

Another film, "Passport to Honor," is scheduled for showing to students fall quarter Chief objective is to orientate students on the functions and operation of the BYU Honor System.

The Honor Council plans to use "Passport to Honor" to stimulate and educate the studentbody into taking a more active interest in campus activities.

"The Fruitful Years" is a public relations film dealing with the assets and attractions of BYU. This movie, co-sponsored by Provo City Chamber of Commerce and the university, will also be released during fall.

Other Productions

Among other productions previously released by the motion picture department are such films as "Move Near to the Angels," "As Others See Us," "The Sacrament Meeting," and "B Y and You." Just completed is "Feed My Sheep," sponsored by the General Board of the Deseret Sunday School Union, while "Building a Better World," "Greener Pastures" and "Let's Dance" are in various stages of production.

Journalists Meet

Two members of the Brigham Young University Journalism Department faculty will attend the annual meetings of the Association for Education Journalism to be held in Boston, Mass., Aug. 26-30.

Participants will be Dr Oliver R. Smith, department chairman, and Wayne M. Cook, instructor in journalism. Dr. Smith is a member of the nominating committee for AEJ.

They will return to Provo Sept. 2

FROM THE SPORTS DESK

by Carolyn Harrison — Universe Sports Editor

Though the hot weather is still present and will be some time, summer school is over and fall is eagerly awaited, its official welcome with the opening of football season.

According to Coach Kopp the Cougar gridders will report to campus August 30 and draw their uniforms. A short 10-day practice session will precede their first game Sept. 21 at Tucson, Ariz.

FOOTBALL KNOWLEDGE

Speaking of football it has come to the knowledge of sports editor that two Cougars, Carroll Johnston and Howard Condie have been listed among the top 60 players in the Rocky Mountains and plains states region.

Friend Jack Carberry, sports editor for the Denver Post has predicted BYU will finish fourth in the Skyline race behind Utah, Wyoming and Denver. John D. Kaler, sports editor of the Albuquerque (N.M.) Journal, agrees with him. Let's let them know what they are talking about.

SOPHS LISTED ON ROSTER

On the 47-man roster are listed a total of 24 sophomores. This same crop of sophomores is largely the reason for the mounting swell of enthusiasm at Cougarville. Among the five ever seen at BYU is the talent, green and inexperienced as it is.

Combined with the experience and know-how of the returning lettermen, the sophs give Kopp the kind of team depth needed to wage Skyline battles. The line will be good-sized and deep from end to end. Although the backfield is not too big it has tremendous speed and a few pretty fair power runners.

The Cougars may run around even the most astute foreigners before the season is over. But one thing is sure, win or lose it's unlikely Kopp's men will let anyone get away with a lazy game.

Head baseball coach Jay VanNoy has been appointed assistant freshman football coach to Max Tolbert.

FOOTBALL CLINIC IN DENVER

Coach Kopp and Dave Schulthess, athletic publicity director, will be attending the annual football clinic in Denver, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. This is a conference held by coaches, athletic publicists and officials to discuss previews of the forthcoming season and rule changes.

Johnny Wood, former Cougar halfback, will be coaching Parowan this fall.

Former basketball star, Tom Steinke is returning to Utah for his wedding. Steinke is claiming Miss Sandra Clifford of Provo as his bride.

Taylor to Speak At Payson Event

Harvey L. Taylor, executive assistant to the president of Brigham Young University, will be a featured speaker at the annual homecoming and Harvest Days celebration in Payson Sept. 1.
